Local News

DAY OF REMEMBRANCE- On December 6, 1989, 14 young women lost their lives at Ecole Polytechnique in Montreal. That day has come to symbolize the high human cost of violence against women and the urgent need to change Canadian society. In 1991, December 6 was designated an annual National Day of Remembrance and Action on Violence Against Women. Canadians are meeting the challenge not only to remember, but also to act to end violence against women. -Change begins with individuals. Status of Women Canada encourages individual Canadians to: •make a personal commitment to the principle of zero tolerance - that no amount of violence is acceptable and that women's safety is a priority. •practice cooperation instead of competition •stop laughing at women - hating jokes and racial slurs •resist and work to eliminate heterosexism •realize that child witnesses of violence suffer as much as the direct victims. INDIVIDUAL MEN CAN: •pledge not to be violent •give up the need for power and control ask women about their experiences, fears and the equality barriers they face. •Share in child care and home maintenance. •challenge any tolerance of violence or sexist behaviour. COMMUNITIES CAN: •assess how well available services for women victims and survivors of violence meet women's needs. •determine what other services are needed and mobilize to add new services where required. •find out what places in your community are dangerous for women and make changes so that women can both feel safe and be safe. -Canadians have the opportunity to remember, in the most effective way possible, the 14 women who died on December 6, 1989: by working together to make Canada a country in which equality and safety are realities for all. ---Status of Women Canada

Letters to the Editor

RESPECTING FREEDOM OF SPEECH- I am writing this letter to inform my customers that the letter which appeared in "The Valley Sentinel" was not my original letter and the contents of it were altered by the Editor. "The Little McBride Paper" printed my letter and (other than a small typing error "Thanking our valued customers") they presented it as I wrote it. I wish to thank them for respecting my freedom of speech. - Susan Koldia, Stedmans V & S, McBride.

REWARD- Between Sept. 24th and Oct. 4th of this year, gasoline was stolen on at least 5 occasions from my bulk tank at my farm at 3057 Eddy Rd. A reward of $500.00 (five hundred) will be paid to any person or persons giving information leading to the identification and conviction of the person or persons responsible. Strictest confidentiality is guaranteed. Anyone interested in claiming this reward should look for a vehicle with a wrecked engine, as the last two lots of gasoline which were stolen were generously spiked with sugar. - Michael R.S. Openshaw 569-2748
