ROBSON VALLEY TOURISM PROJECT (UNBC) NEWS RELEASE- You may see two new faces around between now and the end of June. Colette Purcell-Chung and David Purcell-Chung, two UNBC students are assisting with a research project that looks at tourism in Robson Valley. They are working under project leaders, Dr. Bob Pfister, Professor at UNBC's Resource Recreation and Tourism Program and Dr. Peter Williams, Director of SFU'S Center of Tourism Policy and Research. Pfister and Williams recently received an FRBC grant to help area residents plan for positive changes and prevent negative impacts which are often linked with tourism growth. One of the ways they will do this is by developing training videos and holding educational workshops at the end of their study. Over the next month, Colette and David will be interviewing community members in the Robson Valley's many host communities. They hope to find out what people think about tourism and learn how planning has taken place so far. If you are interested in finding out more, you can contact them at their local project office, 566-4728.
