Prince George Secondary School is presenting a class production of "Canterbury Tales", adapted by Craig Sedaro. The piece is performed by the senior acting class. It is collaboratively directed by three students and their teacher Kevin O'Brien. The performance dates are December 5-8 at 7:30 pm. Matinees will be at 11 am on Thursday 6th and Friday 7th. As it is a modern adaptation, the language is approachable, as is the comedy. Evening ticket prices are $10 for all seats and for Matinee performances $5.
The target audience is middle school and up. The production is performed by special arrangement with Eldridge Publishing Company. Set in England in the 1300's Geoffrey Chaucer, with the help from a few unusual travelers, narrates a colorful series of humorous tales in this adapted excerpt from Chaucer's famous Canterbury Tales. You will surely be spellbound by the elaborate messes that the eccentric characters seem to get themselves into, and the witty ways they get out. From the clutches of death, to the pursuit of true love, a chorus of irresistible farm animals, Athenian kings and Amazonian queens, this show has a little something for everyone. It promises to be an entrancing way to spend an afternoon or evening with the whole gang. Sure to be an instant classic!
