Rob Davidson is PowerFlex Canada's Marketing and Products Manager. Originally from southern Alberta, Canada, Rob is now living in Creston, BC. He started ranching with British cattle in the foothills of southern Alberta. Seeing the advantages of crossbreeding, Rob started using Charolais bulls on Angus and Hereford cows. The results were so positive he began raising purebred Charolais. After 10 years of showing his cattle throughout western Canada, he went back to raising commercial cattle and sheep, plus raising and training quarter horses. In the mid 80's Management intensive Grazing became his focus. Traveling to grazing functions from Jackson, Mississippi to Edmonton, Alberta, Rob met and was positively influenced by people such as Bud Williams, Jim Gerrish, and Allan Savory. He gives tribute to their shared knowledge for strongly impacting his success in the grazing business. Rob has gone on to be a well-known grazing and fence systems coach. If you don't see Rob talking to someone about grazing or livestock he is probably team roping.
